Who Won the Week?

Maggie Nurrenbern – Gets an extended head start in her state senate campaign as her Republican opponent drops out.

Lincoln Hough – Landed the quote of the week: “They talk about a bloated, wasteful, overspent state budget and then they call and say, ‘Hey, can we override and spend some more money?’” Hough said. “And I tell them, ‘wait a minute, aren’t you the same guys that have been on the radio all summer, calling me all sorts of names?’”

Kurtis Gregory – Dodged a bullet with ruling that the state senate maps will stay the same. Some thought a new map could combined Clay and Platte Counties, tilting the district toward Gregory’s rival Rep. Doug Richey.

Women in Robes – With Governor Parson’s Supreme Court appointment of Kelly Broniec, women now have a majority on the state’s highest court. Will they keep it? Depends on who replaces Patricia Breckridge next month.
