Who Won the Week?

Rob Vescovo – Gives a memorable speech drawing on his own childhood, at the heights of his political powers with a couple clear priorities.

Dean Plocher – What’s better than being #1? Everyone knowing you’re going to be #1 in the not-too-distant future.

Jim Lembke – Back in the building, with a new PAC raising money. He may be more powerful this session than he was as a senator.

Sarah Wood Martin – The lobbyist / STL City alderwoman will be unopposed in her re-election after her opponent failed to gather the required number of signatures.

David Jackson – Becomes a principal at Gamble & Schlemeier, the state’s largest lobbying firm.
