Who Won the Week?

Scott Fitzpatrick and Robert Ross – The no-nonsense treasurer and the unwavering committee chair tag-teamed the director of the Department of Revenue into eating his excuse.

Elad Gross – The relentless pursuer of dark money schemes gets his man, US Senator Josh Hawley served with a subpoena after addressing CPAC.

Elijah Haahr – While the second floor remains unmoved from its preoccupation with workforce and infrastructure, Haahr detours the House and passes pro-life legislation to a cheering conservative base.

Ed Emery and Rich AuBuchon – The senator and the lobbyist should take a victory lap for finally advancing the “joinder” tort reform that eluded other legislative sessions.

Caleb Rowden – The toughest challenges are probably still ahead, but the young floor leader notched another win with the go-all-night, find-a-compromise path for tort reform.
