Who Won the Week?

Kate Casas – Quarterbacked the monster education bill... and also was played linebacker and safety for Team Ed Reform.

Catalyst – Two huge victories this week as they found a resolution on the KC landfill debate and passed two education bills. Plus, their clients (DraftKings & FanDuel) announced they surpassed 300,000 signatures for the sports betting initiative.

Marlene Terry – One of three Dems to cross over and join Republicans to help the House get to 82 votes. In the process, she bonded with Senate Floor Leader Cindy O’Laughlin, a relationship which could be fruitful in the coming years.

Jon Patterson - Passed education reform by forcing the Senate to do the exact fixes he needed to pick up barely enough votes all while telling the senate I will pass your Planned Parenthood priority whenever I determine.
“The first real leader the House has had since Catherine Hanaway.”

Alex Riley – Used his Leader-In-Waiting position to help seal the deal with a few reluctant members.
