Who Won the Week?

Dave Schatz – After all the session rollercoaster-hack-and-slay, pinball-blame-game, Schatz got his gas tax signed by the governor. It may be hated by no-new-tax conservatives, but it will be his legacy accomplishment.

Jay Nixon – Missouri Independent runs a piece on Nixon waiting in the wings for the US Senate race. After his decades of public service, he can decide about this last race on his own terms. Remington/MOScout poll shows a winnable race – against the right opponent.

Ann Wagner – Another powerhouse quarter from the congresswoman. Her once depleted cash on-hand is now back up to $1.4 million. If she decides to run for US Senate, she'll have an ample war-chest.

Mary Elizabeth Coleman – Of all the state senate Republican primaries I'm tracking, MEC raised the most last quarter. How the lines are drawn will be critical, but it never hurts to put money in the bank.
